BRIDGE BANDITS ARE OFFICIALLY ARRAIGNED.

Scathing Report Made by the Illinois Senate Investigating Committee.

The Interstate Law and the Law Against Trusts Have Been Grossly Violated.

Forfeiture of the Merchants' Charter and Criminal Proceedings Are Recommended.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 23.—The Senate Court to encompass the forfeiture of the Reidge Investigating Committee submitted Merchants' bridge and its property and Bridge Investigating Committee submitted its report this morning. It pours hot shot into the iniquitous combine which has throt-tled the commerce of St. Louis and robbed the people of Missouri, Illinois and, in fact, the entire South and West. Every charge contained in the resolution authorizing the committee to act is sustained.

Every statement made by the Post-Dispatch in its expose of the bridge combine was justified by the report of the official investigation to the Illinois Senate to-day. The report is here given in full:

mmittee finds that the three corpor ations composing this infamous trust are guilty of having violated nearly every law, charter and obligation under which they secured their rights to exist.

Particularly is this true of the Merchants' bridge, and that company and Charles C. Rainwater, its President, are handled without gloves. While the report does not in-dulge in personalities, it contains a caustic arraignment of the high-handed, sand-bag-ging tactics of the officers of the pool, and recommends that criminal proceedings be brought against them for the victors and unjust measures they have adopted in the management of the bridge property.

Civil proceedings can be brought under the annulling clause of the Merchants' bridge charter, granted by Congress, and criminal proceedings can be instituted against President Rainwater, President Wm. The proof of their guilt is considered conclusive by the investi gating committee.

These suits will have to be brought in the United States District Court at St. Louis, if Attorney-General Olney decides to punish the combine. The action will be brought by United States District Attorney Clopton, acting under the orders of his superior, Mr. Olney. In an interview published in the Post-Dispatch Mr. Clopton has already pointed out what constitutes a violation of the United States statutes governing such the United States statutes governing such cases and the penalty therefor. The specific violations mentioned by Mr. Clopton have been proven to the entire satisfaction of the committee, as indicated in the report.

Mr. Clopton stated in that interview that while he has the power to proceed against the bridge pool he would hesitate to act in such a serious matter until he received instructions to structions to do so from the Attorney-General. Mr. Olney will now be formally called upon to so instruct Mr. Clopton, and in view of the outrageous condition of affairs and the bold-faced violations of law. which the bridge combine has been guilty of, as revealed by the investigation, no reasonable excuse is open to the United States Attorney-General to refuse to do so. by a Post-Dispatch reporter what action he would take in the matter, said: "As soon as I can prepare the papers I will file suit to bring about the forfeiture of the charter of the Merchants' Bridge and to break up not been the second man as the jumped out of an open window. No clew to his identity has yet been the attention of United States Attorneyeral Olney to the finding of the Invest gating Committee and evidence secured by that body. I shall solicit his co-operation in this fight to bring these corporations within the law and to make them the laws which give them being. Of course Mr. Olney's action must be taken through the Federal Courts, while we will seek relief through the State Courts. We have a good case and can make them come to time if we have the proper backing."

Gov. Altgeld, when seen by a Post-Dispatch correspondent, had received no intimation of the probable finding of the committee. He said, however, that while he did not care to be interviewed on a subject on which he had so little information, he would say that means should be found to punish the bridge and ferry companies if they had been guilty of discrimina tions, of pooling or of charging exorbitant rates, either passenger or freight. In so far as he had been informed he was in-clined to believe the only relief could be found through the State and Federal courts He expressed confidence in the ability of Atty.-Gen. ## ROW AMONG DRUMMERS.

Even the proverbally sood-n d drummers find time to light. A lot of them have seceded from the ranks of the Travelers' Protective Association, and hence there is trouble in the air. Wednesday night they formed the St. Louis Council of the United Commercial Travelers, and expect to fight the older organization.

The following officers were elected: Senior Counselor, H. C. Grenner; Junior Counselor, H. S. Parker; Past Counselor, C. P. Gregory; Secretary, S. S. Morse; Treasurer, D. H. Ball; Conductor, Arthur Kruer; Page, Leigh I. Moyle; Sentinel, M. A. Klein; Executive Committee (two years), R. J. Randolph, D. C. Adam; (one year), E. A. Westerman, Jas. Franklin, Jr.

The cause of the secession is said by the secessionists to be the disposition of John A. Lee, President of the T. P. A., to use the organization to further his own political ambition. They accuse him of packing the Missouri State Convention in the Interest of his candidacy for re-election.

First Gun of the Campaign Against Silver Fired at Memphis.

"Free Coinage of the White Metal Means Financial Disaster."

The Single Gold Standard the Sole Hope of the MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 23.—The "Sound Money" Convention, which met here this afternoon, was a much bigger affair in point of attendance than the most sanguine of its projectors had anticipated. There are thousands of visitors in the city and the Auditorium, with its seating capacity of 8,000, was taxed to accommodate the crowd seeking admission.

The number of delegates is between 800 and 1,000. They are still coming in and the enrolling secretary can as yet form no accuroate estimate of the number.

Secretary of the Treasury John G. Carlisle arrived this morning at 5:30, and was met at the depot by a committee composed of Congressman Patterson, Mrs. W. L. Crawford and W. W. Schofield, who escorted him to his quarters at the Gayoso Hotel. There at 10 o'clock he received the delegates to the convention appointed by the different commercial banks of this city and

It has frequently been my privilege to address commercial and financial organizations in other parts of the country, but nowhere have I met a greater number of earnest and intelligent gentlemen than I see before me to-day. I am sure that nothing less than a full oppreciation of the vast importance of the questions to be considered could have secured the attendance of so large a number of active business men upon this occasion, and the fact that they have voluntarily abandoned their usual avocations to participate in the proceedings of this convention encourages me to believe that their efforts it behalf of a sound foraging land.

The world has never witnessed a grander exhibition of courage and fortitude than was presented here when a defeated and impoverished people, without money or credit, and almost destitute of the tools and implements necessary to the performance of manual labor, went uncomplainingly to work to re-establish their social order, renew their commercial relations, and reconstruct their industrial system; and I am unwilling to believe that the same people can now be so

COINAGE ADDS NO VALUE.

That the coinage of the mistals does not now add anything to their actual value in the commercial world, is conclusively proved by the facts that, in all the freat transactions between the people of different countries, the coins are accepted only at their bullion value, determined by their actual weight and fineness, and that bullion itself is still used in making payments, just as it was thousands of years ago. Whatever effect legislation upon the ratios, in connection with legal tender laws, may have had upon the use of the two metals in the payment of antecedent debts, it has never had the slightest effect upon the actual or relative values of the two metals in national or international trade. For many centuries, even after the commerce of the world had grown to enormous proportions, the propriety of making any given quantity of bullion, or any particular coin, a legal tender was not even suggested. Whether payments are made in gold or silver coins, or in gold or silver bullion, actual intrinsic value determines the amount or quantity to be delivered, no matter though they may have had the same or different ratios of value between the metals within their respective limits. The law of France, for instance, places a higher value upon silver relatively to gold than is placed upon it by the laws of the United States, the French ratio being 15½ to 1, and ours being 16 to 1; but if 16 pounds of our silver, coined or uncoined, were sent to that country to be used in the payment of a debt or in the purchase of commodities, it would not be accepted at ratio of 15½ to 1, or at 16 to 1 as compared to gold, but only at the ratio of about 32 to 1, which shows that neither our ratio nor the French ratio has any effect whatever upon the value or purchasing power of the metal itself. Coinage is free in Mexico, and the dollar, which is full legal tender, contains 377.17 grains of pure silver, while our dollar contained in them, which is about one-that fixes the value of the metal.

For a long time, during the early history of the world, and even during the medieval age, gold and silver, in bullion or in the form of coins, constituted almost, the entire circulation among the people, even in the nations most advanced in trade and civilization, and, consequently, the quantity of these metals that could be procured and kept in use was a question of far greater importance then than it is now or ever can be in the future. When life and property had been made reasonably secure by the establishment of stable governments, and regular processes were authorized for the enforcement of pecuniary obligations, credit or confidence largely took the places of bullion and coin in the commercial transactions of the people, and a much smaller amount of metallic money was required in proportion to the whole volume of business done than had been required before. The use of credit in the form of bank notes, checks, bills and other evidences of debt has so increased in modern times that in all highly organized commercial communities the use of coin, except in making change, has been almost entirely dispensed with. The percentage of coin actively employed in conducting business in this all highly organized commercial communities the use of coin, except in making change, has been almost entirely dispensed with. The percentage of coin actively employed in conducting business in this country is so small that it is almost inappreciable; so small in fact, that its disuse in our transactions would not be felt if we had a substitute for, or a paper representative of, the subsidiary pieces. In England, France and some other countries a larger amount of coin is used, because they have no very small notes.

Although we have the gold standard, or measure of value, in this country, our actual stock of gold bullion and coin amounts to only about one-third of our actual currency—a condition of affairs which would have been inconceivable a few centuries ago. We have about $625,000,000 in gold, $397,62,873 in full legal-tender silver, $246,681,000 in old United States notes, $149,684,471 in Treasury notes issued in the purchase of silver bullion, $209,719,850 in national bank notes, and $75,109,599 in subsidiary silver coin, making in all $1,894,707,783, exclusive of the minor coins, and every dollar of this vast volume of currency is kept equal in value to the standard established by law, so that every man who receives a silver dollar or paper dollar in exchange for his products, or in satisfaction of a debt, gets just as good a dollar as the man who receives gold. This is the monetary system and this is the financial condition which the advocates of free coinage at the ratio of 18 to 1 now propose to revolutionize at once by a change in the standard of value so that the whole mass of circulation left for the use of the people would be reduced to about one-half the purchasing power it has now; or, in other words, so that it would require about double the amount of currency that is required now to perform the same service in the exchange of commodities. But the consummation of such a policy would produce results more far-reaching and disastrous than the mere reduction of the standard of value, because for a a great and sudden change in our monetary system.

CAN BE NO DOUBLE STANDARD.
But it is contended by a large number of the advocates of free coinage—perhaps a majority of them—that the effect of their policy would be, not to abolish the present standard of value and substitute the single silver standard in its place, but that it would establish what they call bimetallism and a double standard. I confess my inability to understand what is really meant by a double standard or measure of yalue; the idea is incomprehensible to my smind, because I cannot conceive how it is possible to have two different legal and authoritative measures of the same thing in use at the same time, as, for instance, a pound weighing sixteen ounces and a pound weighing sixteen ounces and a pound weighing sixteen ounces and a pound and both declared by law to be legal pounds. I agree entirely with Gen. Jackson's Secretary of the Treasury, who said: "The proposition that there can be but one standard in fact is self-evident." The proposition to establish and maintain two different measures of value to be in use at the same time, and to be applied to the same things at the same time, embodies a physical and metaphysical absurdity, and this is so evident that the ablest thinkers and writers upon the subject have been at last forced to abandon it. Prof. Francis A. Walker, one of the most distinguished bimetallists in the United States or in the world in a carefully prepared paper recently published, says:

But one thing more remains to be aid in this connection; that is, in reply to the allegation of the monometallist writers that the course of even in France which has been receited did not considered the same then account of the monometallist writers that the course of even in France which has been receited did not considered the same than account of the monometallist writers that the course of even in France which has been receited did not considered the same than france which has been receited did not considered the proposition of the mono

Therefore, according to their views, there is no great historical instance of the success of bimetal-limits of the success of bimetal-limits. On the other hand, we may be permitted for ourselves to say what we mean and propose by hismetal-limits, the criticism in question does not fooken our case at all. We fastly deny that bimetallism nocessarily involves the concurrent circulation of the two metals. There is some reason to believe that the French statemen of 1803 really expected that concurrent circulation would result; but no bimetallist nowadays makes the concurrent circulation of the two metals in the same country a uscessarity of that system. It it results only in establishing an alternating circulation, the chief results of bimetallism will still be achieved, as they were by the action of France.

This is intelligible, for we can all understand how it is possible to have an alternating standard and circulation, sometimes gold and sometimes silver, and the monetary history of the world proves that this is just what happens whenever the two metals are freely coined in any country and made full legal tender. Values will always be measured by the kind of money in actual circulation, no matter what the law may declare, and, therefore, if the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 should drive out gold and substitute silver and paper redeemable in silver in its place, we should have a single silver standard and actual silver monometallism. Instead of using both gold and silver as we do now in larger amounts than ever before in our history, we should instantly expel the more valuable metal from the country and make the other the sole basis of our currency. We have now practical bimetallism—the use of both metals as money; we should have then practical monometallism—the use of ohly one metal as money. This is neither speculation nor prophecy, but a conclusion based on facts established by the experience of all nations in all ages.

on facts established by the experience of all nations in all ages.

THE TRUE PROPOSITION.

In order to eliminate all irrelevant matter and simplify the argument, allow me to state exactly what the proposition now pending before the people is: It is proposed that the United States, without the cooperation or assistance of any other Government, shall provide by law that all the silver bullion, or foreign silver coins, that may be presented at the mints by individuals or corporations, foreign or domestic, shall be coined, at the public expense, into silver dollars, at the ratio of 16 to 1 w.th gold—that is, that sixteen pounds of silver shall be considered equal in value to one pound of gold, and the weights of the coins shall be adjusted accordingly—and that the coins so made at the public expense shall be delivered to the owners of the bullion, or foreign silver coins, as the case may be, and all the people of the United States, but nobody else, shall be compelled by law to receive them as dollars of full value, in the payment of debts due to them from their own fellow-citizens and from the citizens or subjects of other countries. It is not proposed that the citizens or subjects of other countries. It is not proposed that the citizens or subjects of other countries. It is not proposed that the citizens or subjects of other countries. It is not proposed that the citizens or subjects of other countries with us, because that can be done only by international agreement, and our impatient free-coinage friends declare their determination to proceed at once independently of all other Governments. All who are indebted to us are, therefore, to have the privilege of paying in silver, while all to whom we shall become indebted are to have the privilege of the world, which is the only whom we shall become indebted are to have the privilege of requiring us to pay in gold.

Measured by their purchasing power in the markets of the world, which is the only real test, the relative value of silver bullion to gold bullion is about 32 to 1; that is, it requires in all countries—silver-standard countries as well as gold-standard countries—about 32 pounds of silver bullion to procure the same quantity of commodities that one pound of gold bullion will procure, and, therefore, the proposition to authorize the free and unlimited coinage of silver into full legal tender money at the ratio of 16 to 1 means, under existing conditions, that the intrinsic value of the silver dollar shall only be half, or about half, the intrinsic value of the gold dollar. My own opinon is that after we had passed a certain limit the more silver dollars we coined the less they would be worth, because the inflation itself would still further diminish their purchasing power. Such legislation by the United States alone would not reduce the value of the gold dollar to any extent whatever, because, as already stated, the value of that metal in commercial transactions all over the world is estimated according to its weight and fineness, and will continue to be so estimated, and, consequently, the only way in which this country alone could diminish the value of its gold dollar would be to reduce the weight of the pure metal contained in it.

BI-METALLISM HAS FALLED.

BI-METALLISM HAS FAILED. The attempt to coin the two metals without limit as to amount into full legal tender money and keep both in circuitation at the same time has been made by nearly every civilized nation in the world and has failed in every one of them. It has failed because it is not every one of them. It has failed because sible to establish and maintain a legal ratio corresponding at all times with the intrinsic or commercial ratio between the two metals contained in the coins, and because whenever either of the metals was under-valued relatively to the other in the coinage laws it was expelled from the country. England persisted in the attempt for nearly five hundred years, and, notwithstanding the enactment of most severe penal statutes against the exportation of coins or buillon, was at last forced to abandon the effort and adopt the single standard. France, in the coins of buillon, was at last forced to abandon the effort and adopt the single standard. France, in the legal ratio between them more than 150 times in a single century, and finally, in 1576, finding that gold was leaving her and that in terryears her net imports of silver had amounted to $280,000,000, stopped the coinage of legal tender silver, and for nine-ten years the attempt has been abandoned in that country. Many other nations in Europe and other parts of the world have subjected their people to great loss and expense by their adherence to monetary expense of the two metals in use at the same pense by their adherence to monetary expense to the country in the country in the country in the country

All who have been or may be induced to give their support to this revolutionary policy, upon the assurance that it will be transacted. For they was an in the transacted of the country more money for use in the transacted. For they was an in the strain of the country more money they will have less, and that it will be depreciated in value besides. The introduction into the currency of a country of any kind of money at the strain of a laways operated in the currency of a country of any kind of money at the strain of a laways operated in the strain of the currency of a country of any kind of money at the beginning. must pay for both of these risks by receiving a smaller price for his commodutes, and hence his prices will never increase in proportion to the actual depreciation of the money in which they are paid. To illustrate my meaning, when sliver is worth 60 cents per ounce, the buillion contained in a sliver dollar is worth 48.4 cents, but if the price of sliver should advance to 62 cents per ounce, the value of the buillion contained in a sliver dollar would be 48 cents—an increase of nearly 4½ per cent. Now, the price of cotton or wheat will not rise in proportion to the depreciation of the dollar in which it is to be paid; that is, the purchaser for export will not pay for it at the rate of 48 cents for each dollar when sliver is worth 60 cents an ounce, because he knows that if this happens the gold he receives abroad cannot be exchanged for as many sliver dollars as he paid the producer here. He will not take all this risk upon himself, but will compel the producer he qual force to all other articles. It is impossible to estimate accurately the amount of loss which this would inflict upon the American producer of exportable products, but it would undoubtedly be very great, as the value of our exports of domestic merchandise is nearly $70,000,000 per annum, and a small percentage upon this large sum would very materially affect the incomes of our producers.

These results of the investigation establish three facts which have an important bearing upon the present controversy. The first fact established is that the prices of the farms, gardens, orchards and dairies of the country were about 4 per cent higher than they were in the year 1860, long begin than they were in the year 1860, long begin of these farm products since the year 1873 has been much less than the fall in the prices of these farm products since the year 1873 has been much less than the fall in the prices of the commodities the farmers have to be up; and the third is, that the reductions in prices have not been uniform, either as to particular articles or groups of articles, and therefore cannot be attributed to one and the same cause—to the appreciation of gold, for instance. The conclusion is invitable that various influences have operated to produce these changes in prices, some affecting one group of articles and some another and doubtless some affecting all, but to mo one influence can the whole result be attributed. Cotton and wheat are the commodities most frequently referred to by those who contend that the fall in prices is due to the appreciation of gold, but there is nothing whatever in the methods of producing those articles, or in transporting or selling them, or in the character of the money received for them, which would make the appreciation of gold affect the prices of other commodities produced by our people. In addition to the various causes which have more or less affected the prices of all articles, the prices of these two production in 1834 4 was 7.549.817 bales, containing an average of 439 pounds net weight, while the production in 1834 4 was 7.549.817 bales, containing an average of 439 pounds net weight, while the production in the satisfact of the Agricultural Department, the production fo

TO RELIEVE THE DEBTOR.

One of the most effective arguments made by the advocates of free coinage, in some parts of the country at least, is that the people are in debt, and that it is the duty of the Government to relieve them by such legislation as will enable them to procure cheap money for the purpose of discharging their obligations, and in support of this argument the most exaggerated statements are made as to the depressed and suffering condition of our farmers, wage-earners, and other producing classes.

This argument concedes that under the proposed system of free coinage at the ratio of is to I all the various kinds of currency in use by the people, including the silver dollar itself, would be worth less than it is now, for, of course, if this is not to be the result money would be no cheaper than it is now. To assert that the people are in debt is a simply to say that they have traded with each other on credit, that one part of our fellow-citizens, relying upon the integrity and financial standing of their neighbors and acquaintances, have lent them money on time and sold property of them money on time and sold property on the without demanding immediate payment in cash, and that in this way they have enabled many people to carry on a useful business and live in comfortable to purchase it, and has no ready money to pay for it, let, a tractor, Arrested in St. Louis.

Jesse W. Starr, about 50 years old, well dressed and of preposessing appearance, was arrested during the morning at Eighth and Olive streets by Detective Badger, His arrest was due to a telegram received by Chief Harrigan from the Chief of Police at Richmond, Ind., which stated that Starr was wanted there for obtaining $25 under false pretenses.

The prisoner is a contractor and builder of waterworks, and has about finished a contract of that kind at Edwardswille, Ill.

A warrant was issued charging Starr with being a fugitive from justice.

When seen in Chief Desmond's office Starr denied having committed any lilegal act.

"This trouble is over a year old," he said.

"At that time I drew two drafts amounting to $25 on a firm in New York on which I was fully authorized to draw. I got the drafts cashed in Richmond, Ind. Before the drafts were presented to the firm on which they were drawn, the concern falled and in consequence both were returned protested. In the meantime I had moved away and knew nothing about it, I am ready to make good the amount and do not think there will be any prosecution."

SCHNEIDER'S GOOD THING.

Takes It on Complaint Before School Superintendent Long. Principal O. M. Wood of the L'Ouverture chool, Papin street and Jefferson avenue has collided with Leonard Schneider, a baker on Chouteau avenue. Schneider has laid his complaint before Superintendent Long. Schneider has been furnishing the children with a daily lunch, two girls colchildren with a daily lunch, two girls collecting the pay for him. Schneider paid the school a 15 per cent rebate and the sums thus realized were used in hiring a plano, or buying charts and maps.
Schneider, dissatisfied with this arrangement, has refused to pay the rebate. He insists that each child be allowed to buy its own lunch. This Principal Wood will not permit on account of his close proximity to the railroad and possible accidents.
Mr. Wood arranged with a nearby restaurant to have the children fed every noon on soup, bread and meat, but those who prefer the bakery lunch are allowed to continue it.

Horrible Condition of Youthful Patients at the Poor-House.

CRIME AGAINST HUMANITY. Superintendent Overbeck Promises to Wipe Out the Abuses of Gallagherism. New brooms sweep clean, politically as well as domestically speaking. The new broom in the hands of Joseph L. Overbeck, endent at the Poor-house, will do all of that and more. He will not only sweep clean in accustomed lines, but will dig into the corners of precedent and abuse cted, and have long been hid-and remove the colwebs, where they are least suspected, and have long been hidn from the people of St. Louis.

It least that is what he says he will do.

Mr. Gallagher, who set himself against all changes, almost to the extent of having himself against all changes, leaves to the extent of having himself changed, is gone, and a humane man has assumed the reign in a place where intelligent humanitarianism must be the source of reform.

Not more than six months ago the readers of the Post-Dispatch were startled by the graphic depiction of conditions at the Poorhouse that appealed directly to all that is sympathetic in the human breast.

While, of course, conditions at any poorhouse, even the best in the category of alms asylums, are pittable, there are some things at the St. Louis Poor-house startling and past enduring. They have existed for a long time, under other regimes than that of Gallagher. No one has cared; no one has suggested a remedy; perhaps no one has a careful survey.

of his domain from cellar to garret, and the most startling experience he had was whan he came across a handful of children confined in the female insane ward of the finstitution—a feature to the horrors of which the Post-Dispatch drew attention some months ago. Since that time death has thinned the ranks of the little epileptics who lived a life of perhaps unconscious misery, yet necessarily terrible in its consequences, among nearly 500 females in all stages of insanity.

When a Post-Dispatch records

among nearly 500 females in all stages of insanity.

When a Post-Dispatch reporter called at the Poor-house last week and was conducted to that bediam, he was shown a little boy about 5 years of age, with a sweet, intelligent face and eyes as brown as June berries, prancing about, among a lot of women whose every gesture, action, jabber and cry told the story of reason shattered and mind dethroned.

Harry is a bright child and all that alis him is epilepsy in its usual form, s disease as curable as any amidst proper surroundings. For over two years this child has been confined among these idiotic creatures, who have been sent there from the Insane Asylum proper as incurables. The foy is homeless, friendless, a waif, for whom nobody cares; yet with proper treatment and nursing the disease can be combatted and in time eradicated. This proper treatment has been denied the little fellow up to the present time, and his intellect is on the point of being stified by constant association with incurable imbeciles.

Mr. Overbeck saw at a glance that here was a chance for salvation. The doctor was consulted and the boy removed from that ward and sent over to the pauper ward, where he will have two little colored lads to play and romp with in the open, and a sane attendant.

Another case is that of a young girl, nearly 18 years old, who has been in the in-where he will have two fitte colored has to play and romp with in the open, and a sane attendant.

Another case is that of a young girl, nearly 18 years old, who has been in the institution for over ten years. She, too, is afflicted with epilepsy in a violent form. At times she inflicts torture upon herself by biting her hands and arms, and these members have to be strapped to her body to keep them out of reach of her sharp teeth. If the history of this girl could be traced back to the time when she was first placed in this ward—a little child—it may be found that her hopeless case of epilepsy, the blank at are of the sunken eyes, the idiotic look on the prematurely old face, is directly due to constant association with shrieking, jabbering imbeciles, who have been her only companions these many years. This human panions these many years. This human panions these many years. This human in the possibilities and if a cure is still within the possibilities he will erdeavor to find a more suitable place for have.

Walking along the "mowded halls and looking through the o"windows into the dormitories where the beds stand within 3 inches of each other, the reporter wondered what the citizens of St. Louis would say—those humanitarians who fight with might mitories where the beds stand within a inches of each other, the reporter wondered what the citizens of St. Louis would say—those humanitarians who fight with might and main against cruelty to animals—if they could see how little is done for the comfort, the health of its insaine paupers. Bare floors—scrubbed to the whiteness of snow, it is true—are covered with crouching forms of women of all ages. There is not even a common rocking chair into which the poor demented creatures could sink; nothing to strike a gladdening note to the deluded mind; no flowerpot in the window sill, such as cheers the attic or cellar where poverty dwells; no picture on the wall to awaken tender recollections; nothing around which the clouded intellect could weave a pleasant theme, instead of that everlasting, terrible, never-ending, hopeless incarceration against which all fight all day long.

"Give me that key; give it to me right which all fight all day long.

"Give me that key; give it to me right away; give me that key, I say!" cried one poor creature, as the Superintender-blocked the iron grating that separated her from the world outside. And the same sentiment, only expressed in various ways, confronts the visitor in every ward, in every room, at every turn. Even the sunlight comes through bars of iron and paints these symbols of captivity-in slanting stripes over the clean, white floor.

There are to-day 760 incurable insane persons at the Poor-house and 453 paupers. It is an intolerable condition and should be remedied at once. Imagine the city's paupers, nearly all of them old and near the end of their days, housed among shricking, quarreling maniacs. This treatment seems little short of absolute and unpardonable cruelty.

When a reason was saked for this state of Jacob Mahler has secured an option of venter, where he intends erecting a theater and dancing academy to cost $50,000. The option runs until Mr. Mahler can close an the deal which he is negotiating. Then the ground will be purchased. The lot has a frontage of eighty feet with a depth of 150 feet. So confident is Mr. Mahler of closing the deal that he has ordered Wm. The stories will be of great height, the building's height being equal to that of any ordinary five-story structure. The the-ater will be on the second floor.

The exteriry will be of pressed brick, with trimmings of brown stone, The building will have a stontage of sixty feet, with two broad carriace drives on either side. On the first floor will be a ladies' dressing room, 30x20 feet, and a ladies' parlor; also a gentlemen's dressing room and a gentlemen's parlor and smoking room. There will be on the third floor a gymnasium, reading room and a fine billiard hall. In the front will be Mr. Mahler's office. Two magnificent staircases, 9 feet in width, will lead to the grand ball room and theater on the second floor. This portion of the building will be finished in maple and galleries and boxes will be provided.

THE BRIDGE COMBINE INDICTED.

The validity of every charge made by the Post-Dispatch against the Bridge Terminal and Ferry combine of this city has been established by the investigation of the Illinois Senate Committee.

The report of that committee complete ly justifies the criticisms of the Post-Dispatch on the iniquitous Bridge Trust, which has exacted oppressive tribute from all commerce coming into St. Louis from the East or going Eastward from St. Louis.

The committee finds that the corpora tions composing this combine have violated nearly every law, charter and give account in the day of retribution .- Conobligation under which they secured the right to exist and under which they operate. The counts of the committee's indictment for which proof is submitted

"THE CRIME OF 1873."

Mr. W. A. The proof he brings forward is conclusive, but there is more of the same

It was passed, to my certain information, under such circumstances that the fraud escaped the attention of some of the most watchful as well as the ablest statesmen in congress at the time. • • Aye, sir it was a fraud that smells to heaven. It will thus be seen that the President. Senators and Members of the House all testify that they did not know until long afterwards that the act of 1873, with its 167 jumbled up sections, demonetized silver. It was a bunco game, played on the country by a few conspirators who were in the secret.

CARLISLE'S MISLEADING STATEMENT.

The burden of Secretary Carlisle's prophecy of evil in the event of free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 is that all of our gold will immediately go out of circulation and leave us. He predicts an instantaneous and tremendous contrac-tion of the currency to the extent of $625,000,000, the amount of gold in this country. But Mr. Carlisle does not tell where all of this gold will go. He vaguely intimates that it will mysteriously disappear, go into a hole, drop off the earth, to our infinite damage. He afterwards intithat this contraction in some occult way will be followed by inflation, The country is thus threatened with two horrors, the horror of contraction and the horror of inflation, both of them as mysterious and destructive as a bolt from Knowingly or with a degree of igno rance which would be a crime in a Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Carlisle has given a partial and distorted statement of the operation of Gresham's law. has presented an incomplete and misleading view of it. The law roughly stated that the cheape drives out the dearer money is as simple and universal as the law that water seeks its level. Its operation is not instantaneous and local, but slow and genbeing overvalued would be coined. In the beginning there would be some con-traction of metal currency through the hoarding of gold, but only temporarily as the temptation to sell gold for silv at the beginning of the change would be great. But the process would be slow and would be in the nature of an exchange of gold for its equivalent of silver.

The effect would be two-fold. The ent abroad would depreciate the value of gold money by increasing the volume wherever it might go. The admission of silver to the mints would increase the demand for it and hence would increase the price of silver. The whole volume of the world's money would be creased to the amount of silver coined. The appreciation of silver would tend to bring the so-called commercial value of the two metals together. In all probability the increased demand of this country alone for silver by free coinage would bridge the chasm between them. When that is accomplished, both gold and silver would flow freely wherever they are needed.

The effort of the gold monometallists concentrate the effect of free coinage of silver on this country alone is absurd. The best illustration of the effect of free oinage and the operation of Gresham's law is to liken the different countries to water tanks connected by pipes. When water is poured into or drawn out of one tank the level of the water in all is affected. The stimulating effect of an increase of the metal money supply in one country would be felt by all on better prices and an easier money market. But granting the worst Mr. Carlisle may say of the danger of contraction and of the departure of gold on account of silver free coinage, surely the one disaster it might cause would not be as bad as the periodic disasters under gold monometallism, and we could scarcely have more trouble keeping gold in the country than Mr. Carlisle, as Secretary of the Treasury, has had under our present monetary system. We could buy it with silver or products more advantageously than he has bought it with

A friend has handed to me two articles taken from the Chicago Times-Herald, of sated April 30, the other of later date, as signed by one J. Laurence Laughlin, Pro fessor of Political Economy in the Univer-sity of Chicago. My friend says he is told these articles are so highly regarded by President Cleveland that he has given them a place in his scrap-book and commen them to his Cabinet for study. If the Pro-

a place in his scrap-book and commends them to his Cabinet for study. If the President is really in search of information on finance and political history (of which he certainly seems to be greatly in need) he can examine the references I shall give herein and find something much more truthful and accurate than the writings of the Chicago professor, though it may not prove so agreeable to the presidential tasts.

Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin seems to be willing to adopt a "limping logic" and pervert the facts of history in the service of goldbuggery. He thinks the real demonetization of silver occurred in 1852 and says: "The silver dollar was dropped simply because, being worth more than 100 cents in gold, it had not been possible to keep it in concurrent circulation with gold. The act of 1873 simply accepted the situation which had been apparent in 1849 and had already had been apparent in 1849 and had already been indicated by the act of 1863. The ac of 1873 did not change anything not already accomplished by the logic of events."

The professor must have forgotten that the offief commandment of his patron-Pres-ident is "Tell the truth." He says the silver dollar was not coined and used in pay ment of debts from 1853 to 1873, because I was worth 3 per cent more than gold. But was that the reason the act of 1873 made no provision for its future coinage and rove us to the single gold standard? Ever a Chicago professor of political economy can hardly have the cheek to make that assertion. Then he denies that the act of 1873 was passed secretly; says it was first submitted in April 1870 and did not become a law until Feb. 12, 1873, its discussion in the meantime having occupied 144 columns of the Congressional Globe. He summon three or four witnesses to attest all this and though he admits that a larger number of equally credible and competent wit esses testify to the contrary, he ostentatiously announces that his proposition is proven. Is that the kind of logic taught in the Chicago University?

He gives a tabulated statement compiled from the records of Congress, showing the roceedings on the act of Feb. 12, 1873, at its various stages, and draws the inference that the scope and effect of that act must have been known to the members of Congress. But the people are not in the humor to accept inferences and assumptions upon this question. Let us seek more direct tes-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In the speech delivered by Mr. Carlisle yesterday in Covington, Ky., he states that "It is not true that the act of Feb. 12, 1873, which made the gold dollar the unit of value and dropped the standard sliver dollar from coinage, was passed by stealth, or that its purpose or effect was to deprive the people of the use of any coin then in use or then in existence in this country." Mr. Carlisle is either speaking the truth now or he told a "whopper" in 1878 when he said: "The conspiracy to destroy sliver money was 'the most gigantic crime of this or any other age." From this quotation one would naturally conclude that there was other money in use then besides gold.

A little further on in his speech he gives a lot of antiquated worm-eaten and mildewed nonsense about the "debt-paying problem" if silver was remonetized. He states that the immediate effect of free coinage at 16 to 1 would cause depositors' to withdraw their accounts from the banks, causing the their accounts from the banks, causing the banks to fail and also drive the banks' cus-tomers into immediate bankruptcy. "In this crash," he says, "the laborer would be thrown out of employment, the farmer would receive less money for his products,"

Perhaps Mr. Carlisle is not aware of the Perhaps Mr. Carlisle is not aware of the fact that at the present hour with our country on a gold basis there are over four million men out of employment and never in our country's history have we heard of able-bodied men 50 and 60 years of age selling penny newspapers on our street corners for a livelihood, and all of this without the free coinage of silver at any ratio. And as far as the farmer receiving less money for his products, when did you ever hear of 6-cent cotton and 50-cent wheat until the past year or two?

Verily Mr. Carlisle's speech is a profound fraud, full of inconsistencies and deception.

May his Memphis speech be worse.

John Law, Financier.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
You have truthfully said in several recent editorials that the object of the present gold bug movement is to inaugurate the John Law system of banking. Now, who was this John Law? A few facts from his life will show how the accusation you make fits. John Law was a well educated Scotchman, who manifested at an early age a talent for "finance." He became a notorious gambler and roue. Being obliged to flee to France because he had killed a man, he thence went to Holland, and after studying the banking system of the Bank of Rotterdam, returned to Scotland and published a work advocating: the establishment of a bank which should "hold all the resources of revenue of the State in its own hands," and treating them as capital, issue notes thereon.

The British Government declined his proposition to establish such a bank, but he took advantage of France being extremely embarrassed financially to push the scheme through there. His bank, after a career of wild speculation that is amazing. phe known to history.
This is just the system that Wall street and the "sound money" advocates want to fasten on this country. Instead of Government having control of the currency, as the constitution provides, they want to "hold all the resources of the State" in their own hands. They are the logical disciples of John Law, the gambler, the advocate of unlimited credit, and the wrecker of homes.

Decayed Wood Breeds Ants.

An amateur gardener has had a great deal of trouble, year after year, with a certain bed in her flower garden. It was so infested by anis that nothing could grow there, but was invariably devoured by the insects. She tried every vermin destroyer known, with boiling water, and other preventives, all without success. At length she found that a portion of the outer boarding of the shed which stood near this bed was decayed and needed renewal. When these boards were taken away they were found to be alive with ants, which, being destroyed, disappeared from her flowers, and she has had no more annoyance from them. Often ants will get into the house-closets and into the food, in the same way, from some decayed wood near at hand, in which they nest. If their source is looked up, when they come they usually may be uneartheal and killed.

Blundering Statesmanship.

Editor of the Post-Dispatch: On Jan. 31, 1894, the Hon. James G. Maguire offered an amendment to the income tax bill providing "That a direct tax of $31,311,125 be and is hereby annually laid upon land values in the United States, and the same shall be and is hereby apportioned to the States and Territories and District of Columbia, respectively, in proportion to population, as ascertained by the census enumeration of the year 1890. ## ISAAC S. BRISTOL'S CONFIRMATION.

It Depends Upon the Character of His Past Business.

WHAT HIS EX-EMPLOYES SAY

Chambermaids Say the Old Bristol Was Run as Other Houses in the Neighborhood Were Run.

On positive information as to the charac ter of the lodging-house run by Isaac S. Bristol at the northwest corner of Eighth and Chestnut streets, between the fall of 1883 and the spring of 1892, will depend perintendent of the House of Refuge. The charge has been repeatedly made that the house was as bad as any of its kind in that locality, which during the greater part of over after nightfall to prowlers and revelers of both sexes. Mr. Bristol has per-sistently denied this, and has alleged that

He got into the time-payment furniture houses pretty deep, and on Friday of Fair week he skipped out with all the receipts. Then the furniture houses came to me and asked me to take the place was represented to me as doing a pay.ng business, and after looking the ground over I thought I could make it go by running a men's apartment house on the order of the Benton. But the place had too hard a mame. Why, when I dirst got it, the women were so bold that they would get right in front of men on the sidewalk and try to force them to go upstairs. I used to go down and run them away, which I would not have done if I had been catering to the transient trade. I had some mail clerks there to start with, and I tried to get the house filled with men, but it was 'no go.' At last, I sold the furniture for $700. What I put in there stood me $4,200.'' as the place known as the Hotel Brisport could it be surmised how the place was run; but Bristol had finally, in April, 1891, been put out of the house for non-payment of rent, being $500 behind, and he had not paid the debt yet.

James W. Graham, proprietor of a restaurant at No. 314 Oilve street, had looked the place over three years ago, some time after Bristol got out, with a view to converting it into a restaurant and apartment house for men. He was not satisfied with the neighborhood, and decided not to make the venture. He had been informed that the house had been run as a rooming house for several years before that, but had no knowledge of it himself.

Mrs. Salile Moore of No. 1016 Market street (rear) worked in the Hotel Bristol, first as chambermaid and then as laundress, for the last ten months of Bristol's connection with it. At first she was inclined to give Bristol a clean bill of morals, but at length she said:

"Oh. that place was just like all the other."

she said:
"Oh, that place was just like all the other houses of the kind in that neighborhood, I guess. Anybody could stop there if they had a dollar. Bristol was out for the dollar, just like anybody else would be. If they were well-dressed and behaved themselves he asked to support the support of the support of they were well-united they were well-united to questions."

"Did he require couples to register as man and wife before admitting them?"

"Oh, I guess he did, but what does that amount to? They nearly all did that, anyway. I tell you, he ran that house just as all the others in that neighborhood were run."

"Were guests received at all hours?"
"We to that I could not tell you. In the first place, my duties as chambermaid ended at 5 o'clock in the evening, and I did not live in the house. In the next, I was only chambermaid a little while, and then the laundry woman left, and he asked me whether I would do the laundrying, and, as it was pleasanter work and better hours.

whether I would do the laundrying, and, as it was pleasanter work and better hours, I took that. I never saw anything there that was out of the way, but, as I say, the house was run just like all others of its kind in the neighborhood—for wheever came there with money to pay."

Mrs. Ernst Slebold of 1828 Gratiot street succeeded Mrs. Moore as chambermaid. She said: "Mr. Bristol had a good many men in the house when I went there—I heard they were railway mail clerks—but he also admitted men and women together. As far as I know he always made them register as man and wife, although I never saw the register but a few times while I was there. But if they came as man and wife and had the—money to pay, I believe he always let them stay. No, I never had anything to do with the rooms after 5 b'clock in the evening, and was never called on to do any work after that. I believe that Bristol sold out to a man named Shaw, and that there was some trouble about Shaw not standing good for some of Bristol's debts, but, anyhow, Prosser set the furniture out in the street after Shaw took hold, and not while Bristol was there. Mr. Bristol owed Mrs. Moore £29 that I know of."

It was stated at police headquarters that a detailed report had been made out and sent to the Mayor, covering what the police remembered about Bristol's conduct while in possession of the district said that he had been on duty in the vicinity of the Hotel Bristol while it bore that name, and he knew it to be a place where lodgings were granted indiscriminately. He did not wish to be known as having given this statement, because, he said, he had already told what he knew for the information of Mayor Walbridge.

When Chief Reedy was asked, what had been the nattre of the report transmitted to the Mayor he replied that that information must now come out of the Mayor's office, if at all—that he had nothing to offer concerning it.

For three years last past Bristol has been conducting an ordinary ropming house.

if at all—that he had nothing to offer concerning it.

For three years last past Bristol has been conducting an ordinary rooming house, first at No. 1404 Olive street and then at 1602 Olive. Mr. Walter Ridgway of No. 1719 Market street, who has recently removed from No. 1600 Olive, stated that Bristol's conduct and the management of his house in that vicinity had been above reproach; and that he had last fall lost by death one of the sisters who came here shortly before he left the Bristol and had kept it for him. He had taken the body jo New York State for burial, and the other sister remained here with him. Mr. Ridgway could vouch for the propriety of Bristol's conduct while he had been in possession of the premises at No. 1602 Olive street.

Country Speculators Are Running the Wheat Market.

CLOSING PROFITABLE DEALS.

Bulge in the Cereal of Which No Trader Is Willing to Predict an End Under Present Conditions.

This was countrymen's field day on the Board of Trade. The gentlemen from the rural districts have been having a consecutive picnic with the local market for several days past and show no signs of letting go. Their presence in the city markets all over the country, added to the panicky crop reports, is responsible for the nervous condition of the market. Wheat still soared and pandemonius reigned in the pit. No. 2 red July, which closed Wednesday at 78c opened Thursday morning at 81½c and jumped almost immediately to 83%c. There was lots let go at that figure and the market sunk to 82%c. The edge wore off after that and offerings were few, but snapped up as soon as uttered.

Talk about dollar wheat that was laughed at a fortnight ago, is now in everybodys mouth and the best posted can see no end to the flurry.

Frost, chinch bugs and drouth are at the bottom of the boom in prices. The best informed operators scout the idea of a speculative bulge. They say the shortage in the visible supply is the legitimate ground of the advance. The figures on this point are not so impressive. The visible supply of wheat May 18, 1894, was 62,683,600 bushels. On the same date this year the supply was 66,484,600, a decrease of 5,599,600 bushels. Cash wheat sold at 85c Thursday morning. This is a remarkable advance, as ten months ago, July 28, 1894, it touched bottom at 47½c. Flour is advancing proportionately with wheat. The price last July was $2.15. It is now $4 per barrel.

The country speculators and, strange to say, the professional traders, are on the long side. There was plenty offered this morning and a good many deals closed out. As much as 20 cents to 30 cents per bushel was realized on some deals. John A. Warren, Charles Spencer, Ben Barns and Amadee Call are among the heaviest winners on the advance.

The countrymen are just handling things to suit themselves and where they have walked home herectofore after their speculative journeys to town, they can now afford to ride back on first-class bleydes.

United Elevator Stock is another influencing factor in the local market. The stock has been consistently hammered for the last fortnight and on the noon call Thursday the bottom all but dropped out. Last December the stock was quoted at $50. It was as good as $46 two weeks ago. Then the decline came and in the brokers' corner it opened Thursday with offers of 40½, begging for takers.

All sorts of rumors are afioat to account for the decline. A discrepancy between actual and stated supply of wheat was talked of, but President Web Samuels sharply contradicted the statement. "We have every bit of wheat on hand we are reported carrying." said he. "Report of a dividend."

There was an uncertain feeling nevertheless and everybody in the brokers' corner had a block of elevator to dispose of. The hammering opened with offerings of 40½ with no takers and twenty-five shares went at $36 and the closing offer was 33%, with no acceptances.

Just before the close of 'Change wheat broke over 3 cents, July selling down to 79% and closing at 80%.

DENIED BY MR. OPEL.

Report of His Reconciliation With His Recently Divorced Wife.

Gossips have not yet relinquished the troubles of the Opel family and during the past few weeks have seized upon a new phase, the divorce suit in which Mr. Louis Opel proved victorious, having been worn threadbare.

Opel proved victorious, having been worn threadbare.

About four weeks ago Mr. Opel's married daughter, whose wedding to a gentleman from Chicago took place shortly after the divorce suit, came to St. Louis upon a visit, accompanied by her husband. The couple remained about two weeks at the Opel mansion on Lindell boulevard. Ever since their departure it has been current gossip among the former friends of Mrs. Opel in West End society that a reconciliation between Mr. Opel and his wife had been effected and that Mrs. Opel would shortly return to the home of the Vice President of the George T. Dittman Shoe Company. The gossips credited the daughter with having used her influence successfully and the statement has been freely made that after incessant pleadings on her part with her father, the latter yielded.

The gossips seem to have been merely drawing conclusions, and the visit of Mr. Opel's daughter appears to have been magnified to an importance it does not deserve. When Mr. Opel was told Thursday by a Post-Dispatch reporter of the ruomrs floating around the West End he became very indignant.

"Are they crazy?" demanded Mr. Opel. "They must be to imagine such a thing. The divorce suit should have been sufficient to convince everyone that I am forever done with my wife. I have not seen her nor even heard from her since the divorce suit. I haven't the least idea where she is. My daughter was down on a two weeks' visit, but not a word did she say to me about her mother. I have not any idea that she herself knows her mother's whereabouts. There is absolutely no excuse for such gossip."

HANNIBAL, Mo., May 23.—The State Medical Association which convened in this city Tuesday adjourned this afternoon. It was decided to hold the next annual cor was decided to hold the next annual convention at Sedalia. Excelsior Springs and Jefferson City also wanted it.

The election of officers this morning resulted as follows: President, E. Leslie Hall of Kansas City; Vice Presidents, Drs. J. H. Thompson, Kansas City; H. C. Shutte, West Plains; J. D. Potts, Boonville; J. J. Russell, California; Recording Secretaries, Dr. F. R. Fry, St. Louis, and T. B. Hall, Marshall; Corresponding Secretary, Dr. C. F. Wainwright, Kansas City; Treasurer, Dr. C. M. Thompson, Jefferson City.

Dr. Shaw of St. Louis was a formidable candidate for President, but his name was not placed before the convention, a nominating committee naming the candidates.

A Remarkable Waiter.

Benjamin Bement is 6 feet 2 inches in height. His hair is rather on the reddish order, and he wears a flerce mustache. Among his associates he is known as "Big Ben," and he is a waiter in Shanley's restaurant on Broadway. There's nothing extraordinary about that, but the man himself is. He is a litterateur.

Congreve and Shakspeare are more familiar to him that more modern writers, for he can quote them. He knows what every author one can mention has written, and when he has any sort of an opportunity delights to talk of Thackeray, whom he admires most of all, or Charles Reade, or even "Alice in Wonderland." Howells and James he has at his finger ends, and Tolstof's or Bellamy's sociological theorie he can discuss at length. Alfogether he is really a remarkable fellow.

This is the strongest nation on the globe and should lead the van instead of bringing up the rear in the work of redeeming the people from the slavery which the Rothschilds and Belmonts and their lieutenants would fasten upon the masses."

As to the Presidency he said: "I am for sliver Dick Bland for President. He is the logical and inevitable candidate. He would be his own platform. Me would need no one to vouch for him. He is a plain man of the plain people and would make a plain, old-fashioned Andrew Jackson cheft magistrate. In electing him we'g' snow what we were getting. He's honest as the day is long, br've as Julius Caesar, absolutely faithful. This principles, and would restore the Government to the simplicity of Jefferson and the burity of Monroe. He would sweep the land from sea to sea."

As to a State convention he said: "The people want it and they will have it. The best thing the State Committee can do is to call it immediately. What possible harm it could do for the Democrats of Missouri to get together in this crisis of the party's fate and take counsel together is one of those things which passeth all human understanding."

Populistic, Socialistic and Prohibitionist parties is well under way. A call has been issued for a National conference, to be held in the University Temple, Prohibition Park, Staten Island, on June 23.

This call has received hundreds of signatures from pen and women throughout the United States prominent in the counsels of the three parties, and from other men of national reputation.

The main parpose of the conference is to unite the three parties on a common platform, which has already been prepared. In it a concession is made to prohibitionists in the form that a demand that the State and Federal Government shall sell and manufacture liquor.

Among the signers to the call are United States Senator J. H. Kyle, of South Dakota; ex-Mayor Abram B. Hewitt, of this city; General Master Workman Sovereign, of the Knights of Labor; James B. Reynolds, of this city; Rev. Dr. W. S. Rainesford, Frances E. Willard, President National Women's Christian Temperance Union, Mary E. Lease, of Kansas, and many others. This is the platform upon which the workers in the movement hope to unite the three parties:

"The telegraphs, telephones, railroads and mines should be owned and operated by the Municipalities, and the public employee should not be engaged or discharged for political reasons.

"The currency of the country should be issued by the Federal Government alone and not by grivate individuals or corporations."

A BICYCLE SNAKE STORY. Riders of Wheels Usurping the Field of the Fisherman.

The Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, May 23.-When people down Patchogue way get tired of digging for Capt. Kidd's treasures they give themselves up to the concoction of snake stories. Here is the latest:

Samuel Jarvis, while riding his wheel, ran over a big blacksnake. The reptile, resenting this injury to its person, imbedded its fangs in one of the pneumatic tires of Jarvis' bicycle.

Jarvis killed the snake and, remounting, started off with it as a trophy. He had not gone far, however, when the bitten tire became deflated. Examination showed that came deflated. Examination showed that the snake's teeth had punctured the rubber tube like so many needles. The local den-tist is said to have found on the snake's teeth minute particles of vulcamized rubber in corroboration of Jarvis' story.

Frog in an Elephant's Trunk.

SALT LAKE, Utah, May 23.—A frog hopped into the trunk of Jess, the elephant, in Bells & Renfrow's circus, causing the beast to burst her chains, overturn cages of animals and rush down Main street, striking the curb with her trunk. COUNT VON KESSLER DEAD. He Helped Introduce the Ambulance Service in New York. NEW YORK, May 23.—A cable dispatch announces the sudden death in Paris of Count Adolph William von Kessler, well-known in the United States. Count von known in the United States. Count von Kessler was born in Hamburg 55 years ago. He early learned to be an Italian in Italy, a Frenchman in Paris and an American here. The Count as a boy was apprenticed to the firm of Aufmordt & Co., slik importers, which has branches all over the world. He advanced rapidly and traveled in the interest of the firm, of which he became a partner. He married Miss Alice Lynch, a great beauty, and a daring horsewoman, whom he met in Bombay. During the Franco-Prussian war Herr von Kessler, as he was then called, was an officer of the Society of the Geneva Cross, which did such noble work among the wounded of both armies, and when the Prussians entered Paris the magnificent Kessler home was made a hospital for the soldiers. For this act Frederick gave him the patent of nobility. Count Kessler had many interests in this country, including a big Texas ranch. He was a great admirer of American thrift, science and art. He helped introduce the ambulence service in this city, as he had done in several European capitals.

SELTZER SUBDUED THEM. A Little Man With a Syphon Separates Two Fighting Dogs.

dal to The Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, May 23.-Two enormo dogs, a Great Dane and a mastiff, while being taken for an airing by the groom, got into a fight with each other. The terrified groom who had the animals in charge sought to separate them. A big crowd gathsought to separate them. A big crowd gathered and several men tried to pull the dogs apart. They might as well have tackled two elephants. Uptown and downtown cable cars stopped and their conductors formed in the ring of excited spectators. Suddenly a little man ran out of a saloon with a syphon of seltzer, which he directed into the eyes and ears of the combatants. The effect was electrical. Each dog at once let go his grip and staggered to his feet, limp, weak and docile. The crowd gave a cheer for the stranger, and the groom moved away with his thoroughly subdued prize-winners.

Daniel Kelly's Discharge Ordered by ANDERSON, Ind., May 28.-The Grandjury has ordered Daniel Kelly discharged jury has ordered Daniel Kelly discharged from jail. He was held as an accessory to the murder of Wm. Foust at the house of Margaret Bolton in Elwood a year ago. Mrs. Bolton was present at the killing. George Hires was convicted and sentenced to thirteen years in prison as the murderer; then Mrs. Bolton, who is dying slowly, made a confession, saying that she herself fired the fatal shot in the presence of Kelly. Kelly was arrested near Rochester, Ind. Last Saturday Juage Elison consented to have Mrs. Bolton hypnotized, and while in this state she said her former confession was not true, and that Hires is the murderer, hence Kelly's discharge. A motion for a new trial for Hires growing out of the complications is pending.

Ajax Is Also in This Class in the East.

FRED FOSTER'S EXPERIENCE.

The St. Louis Turfman Found Stake Horses Entered in Selling Events and Decided to Pack Up the Fair Grounds and he may start Dr. Rice in the handicap there According to Foster, the son of Onondago is in splendid shape, Taral having saved nicely in the Brooklyn, when he saw that he was hopelessly beaten. "The going was heavy and holding," said

Foster, "and my horse, like Ramapo, could not plough through it with the big weight up. I saw it was all over at the three-quarter pole, although at the time Taral had Rice's head in the air. Over a sloppy track I might have had a chance, but the M. D. could not run through sticky mud, anchored as he was, My horse don't like big weight even on a fast track and it must be remembered that he packed ten pounds more this year than he did when he won the Brooklyn last season.

"Ramapo was in condition to run for a man's life this spring and if the going had been good I believe the race would have re-sulted Ramapo-Riee or Rice-Ramapo.

"I returned West because I became con-vinced that the East was no place for a sulted Ramapo-Rice or Rice-Ramapo.

"I returned West because I became convinced that the East was no place for a man who has not first-class horses. Of course, Rice would have won for me there, but I would have had a hard time getting the money with the rest of my stable. Stake horses like Ajax and Wernberg run in the selling races down East and I stood little chance of winning against them with Frank Farmer, Sullross and Eloroy. A day or so after the Brooklyn there was a six furlong selling race on the card. It looked nice for Frank Farmer, but I got out in a hurry when I saw that Wernberg and horses of his class would start. They ran the quarter in 24 and the six furlongs in 1:14. That convinced me that I had no business in the East with anything but Dr. Rice, and I shipped to St. Louis as soon as I could get away.

"Ed Orth and myself won a good bet on Sister Mary the first day at Brooklyn. Johnny McCafferty was in with us and he persuaded me to invest my winnings in Ben Lomond, Lollie Easton and a pair of 2-year-olds by Buchanan. McCafferty told me Disinly that there was no chance for such a class of horses around New York this season, and when I concluded to return West he induced me to relieve him of them. McCafferty had about thirty horses in training, including a big bunch of 2-year-olds, and he is anxious to unload."

CROKER AND DWYER'S STRING. More Race Horses to Be Shipped Across the Water.

NEW YORK, May 23.-The World to-day says: Charles F. Dwyer has received a letter from his father, Michael F. Dwyer asking him to send to England the best of asking him to send to England the best of the Croker-Dwyer horses that were left here when the firm sailed, last February. A hurried inspection of the stable has been made, and next week half a dozen more horses will be sent to England. Among those asked for by Mr. Dwyer are Prince George and Arimitage, both owned by Richard Croker. Neither of them has started this year. They are both speedy sprinters. Elliott, who trains the American division of the Croker-Dwyer stable, and young Mr. Dwyer, who is manager, deny that any cablegrams have been received from England. They were both at a loss to know how the report became public. The letter ordering the horses sent over was received by Mr. Dwyer last week.

The merchants must, of course, take the goods in each particular with the arbitrary added to the purchase price of the goods, and of course the citizen purchasing this class of goods must take them with the addition of the double arbitrary added to the price. Other witnesses plainly and forcibly show how great the Illinois consumer suffers from the charge of this arbitrary, whether it is doubled or charged but once.

St. Louis and other Western cities are the natural markets for many of the products, mineral, agricultural and manufactured of the southern portion of the State. East St. Louis is the only practicable point at which the Mississippi can be crossed, and all of those products must anker the Western the southern portion of the State. East St. Louis is the only practicable point at which the Mississippi can be crossed, and all of those products must enter the Western markets, encumbered and hampered by this unreasonable tribute tax, and, coming in competition with the products of other sections of the country not so encumbered by the arbitrary, must be sold at a greatly reduced or no profit to the Illinois producer. The great injury wrought to our producers in all lines who seek St. Louis as a market or depend upon a Western market seems self-evident.

It was claimed in a communication addressed to this committee by the President of the Merchants' Bridge Co. that the rates for transferring over the Merchants' Bridge and its terminals were lower than rates approved by the Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners of this State. Hon. W. S. Cantrell, Chairman of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission of Illinois says this statement is incorrect, and, after citing many examples to show the incorrectness of such a statement, be show that the price for transferring a train of twenty-five cars across the bridge and terminals amounts to about $77 more than is tolerated by the Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners in this State.

The evils of the bridge consolidation does not end with the high charges for transportation of freight and passengers, but many instances of the most sweeping discriminations in behalf of favored shippers were presented to your committee, and certain coal producers of Illinois are to a large extent shut out of the St. Louis and Western markets by reason of this ruinous practice of making rates greatly reduced in favor of certain coal shippers.

Members of the committee are being complimented for the thoroughness of the investigation, and their caustic arraignment of the unlawful practice of the pool is considered fully warranted by the evidence. Every indication points to the unanimous adoption of the report.

From the Chicago Herald.

The rumored engagement of Nellie Grant. Sartoris to Gen. Kyd Douglas, recalls to the public mind the beautifully tender attachment which Gen. Grant manifested for his daughter. The union with Sartoris was opposed to the limit by the young lady's parents; subsequent events prove all too clearly that the old folk's estimate of Sartoris' character had been correct. Sartoris was a drunkard, and there is probably no language adequate to portray the misery and the humiliation to which he subjected his wife. To add to the wretchedness of her life, the family of the drunken husband utterly declined to receive the young wife, or to accord her that recognition to which, as the daughter of Gen. Grant she had been accustomed and was entitled. Mrs. Sartoris may have kept silent; her womanly pride probably prevented her from telling her parents of the dreadful mistake she had made. But rumors of her misery came from over the sea.

PHELPS COMES TO ST. LOUIS

He and Solicitor Cochran Put Their Heads Together.

TALK OF A COMPROMISE

Report That the Railroads Have Con cluded to Accept a Fellow-Servant Bill.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 23.—Phelps left hurriedly for St. Louis last night to consult with General Solicitor Cochran. The situation was getting too hot for him o act on his own judgment.
After Flanagan's failure to control the fuse to adjourn until a fellow-servant bill had been sent to the Senate, Phelps used the wires liberally. Then he told a few of his confidential friends that it had been concluded to try to force the Peers bill through the House or get some sort of a compromise. He is said to have asserted that the railroads had finally concluded that they did not want the fight carried before the people, but had determined to take a bill if they could get a satisfactory one.

What will be finally agreed upon will not be known until Phelps gots back from St. Louis. In the meantime Flanagan is doing his best to keep the lines straight. se to adjourn until a fellow-servant bill

PHELPS' PLANS MISCARRIED. Russell and Flanagan Failed to Round Up the Herd.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 23.—Principal al to The Post-Dispatch. Plugger Phelps and Flim Flam Flanagan have not been altogether harmonious re have not been altogether harmonious re-cently. Phelps had an adjournment plugged up for Saturday with his "me toos" in the Senate, and his resolution was adopted yes-terday, as he had arranged. Before the resolution was originally introduced in the Senate Phelps and Orchard were together in the committee-room adjoining the Sen-ate Chamber. Lyman was then sent for, and the three had a caucus. Then Lyman went back and introduced the adjournment resolution.

The action of the Republican caucus of went back and introduced the adjournment resolution.

The action of the Republican caucus of the House, however, disconcerted the combine plungers' immediate plans. Phelps had depended upon Russell and Flanagan to take charge of the House caucus, and force it to agree to an adjournment on Saturday, before there could be any possibility of a fellow-servant bill being adopted.

But for once the majority of the House caucus subordinated the dictates of Russell and Flanagan to party policy, and decided that it would be good politics to refuse to adjourn until a straight fellow-servant bill was passed and sent to the Senate. Then, having the Senate on record in favor of adjournment, the House could adjourn after giving it two or three days to refuse to do anything, which they well knew the combine Senators, acting with the Republicans, would refuse to do.

Phelps, however, didn't like the action of the House. He was afraid that if a straight bill was sent to the Senate some of the Senators who had been hiding behind a general law might be forced into voting for the House bill. So he called Flanagan up for a reprimand. He cursed him like a pirate and told him in emphatic terms that he was no good—that he had let the Saturday adjournment plan slip, and now there might be a possibility of a bill slipping through. He added that Lyman, Love, Orchard and Harrison had all made arrangements to go home and had announced that they were going, and that now they would have to stay to help out in dilatory moions and attempts to prevent a bill coming to a list vote. Flanagan felt so broken up over the rebuke of his superior that he at once started out with a couple of his Indians.

It isn't at all probable, however, that the temporary mortification of Phelps will amount to much. The House Republicans have agreed to adjourn next Wednesday. They figure that they can put the Labor Committee's bill before the Senate by Friday or Saturday, and between that time and Wednesday the Senate will have a chance to show whether it is completely under the lobby's control.

Wednesday the Senate will have a chance to show whether it is completely under the lobby's control.

Of course, the Republicans of the House, by doing this, expect to gain political capital. They think that their persistent refusal to act on any fellow servant legislation will be overlooked, and that their record will be made up on their final action. Still, they will put the Senators on their individual records.

It isn't at all sure, either, that the House can pass the Labor Committee substitute as quickly as it thinks it can. The Flanagan Indians started in by ordering copies of all the fellow servant bills before it printed. This was meant for nothing but an opportuunity for delay. If the lobby tools in the House follow out the tactics of Phelps' lackeys in the Senate they can prevent a vote indefinitely by offering amendments, talking indefinitely on them and resorting to the usual parliamentary delays.

The House is a better place to pursue the procrastination policy because of its greater number, the length of time it takes for a roll call, and the number of speeches that can be made. Even with a great majority of the members in favor of a bill it is easy to drag the debate out for days. The next few days will tell the tale in the House.

Orchard and one of Flanagan's Indians in Jasper were talking in a saloon yesterday morning. Orchard swore that the Senate would never pass a straight fellow-servant bill. The friendly red man from Jasper declared equally emphatically that the House wouldn't either. Then they convivially agreed that everything was all right.

The friends of Phelps and Flangan, who are expecting to get passes to go home, would better profit by the experience of the regular session, and get them in advance. As soon as Phelps is through with his cattle he has no further use for them, and he doesn't care whether they have to pay their fare or count ties. When the regular session adjourned it is said that Phelps boarded the train a couple of miles below Jefferson City to avoid the useless issuing of passes, and hid in a convenient place on a car until it had passed through. The gang that waited for him had to make the best arrangements it could.

ed for him had to make the best arrangements it could.

Phelps has boasted all along that there are only twelve votes for a fellow-servant bill in the Senate. He has said it repeatedly and openly. The vote for Lyman's resolution to adjourn yesterday, which was introduced by Lyman after he and Orchard talked with Phelps, will bear repetition. Here it is:

Yeas—Amelung, Brewster, Drum, Goody-koonts, Gray, Harrison, Landrum, Love, Lyman, Morton, Mott, O'Bannon, Orchard, Peers, Powers, Seaber, Tunnell, Walker, Williams, Wurdeman—20.

Nays—Hallard, Baskett, Bledsoe, Busche, Dunn, Gash, Kennish, Klene, Lancaster, McClintic, Madison, Yeater—12.

Absent—Davisson.

Davisson has been absent for several days and is not expected back again.

If this is not a test vote every Senator who voted for adjournment should be called upon by his constituents for an explanation. Every man jack of them knew that if the House concurred in the resolution there was absolutely no show for a fellow-servant bill. They knew that the House would not adopt the Peers sham, and they knew that by forcing an adjournment Saturday there would be no chance to pass any bill. They knew, also, if they knew anything, that the adjournment resolution was part of the game of Phelps and his Senatorial pluggers. If the twenty Senators who voted with Phelps, Lyman, Orchard, Harrison, Wurdeman, Goodykoods, Peers, Brewster and their dark lantern allies do not constituents.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

A petition is in circulation among owners of property abutting on Collinsville avenue to have that thoroughfare paved with vitrified brick from Broadway to St. Clair avenue, a distance of about a mile. Collinsville avenue is the main business street in East St. Louis and is the second street "filled" under the improvements inaugurated at the beginning of the Stephens administration. A test of the vitrified brick pavement, made last winter on Pennsylvania avenue and at the intersection of Missouri and Collinsville avenues, has proved satisfactory, and it is believed that enough signatures will be obtained to the petition mentioned to insure the success of the movement for the further improvement of Collinsville avenue. Owing to the fact that no "fill" will be necessary, it is estimated the cost for the new pavement will be less than $2.50 per square yard.

seven miles off shore, when a boat approached, manned by seven or eight savage-looking Moors, stripped to the waist, with their heads shaved, all except a long tuft of hair on top, and armed with rifes and long knives. They hailed the Anna and ordered the Captain to lower sail. Upon his refusal they began firing and then boarded the ship. The crew resisted desperately, but, having no firearms save one revolver, were overpowered. The Captain was mortally wounded and died that night and the mate, after felling one pirate with a crowbar, was shot and wounded in four places. The pirates carried off everything movable, even the cabin doors, and left the ship without lights or compass to be worked with great difficulty by the crew to Gibraitar. The affair has created a stir at Gibraitar, where it is held that such outrages almost within sight of Europe are a slur upon civilization and the Dutch Government is investigating the matter.

memories does that hoary kind of title conjure up. Let me prophesy again. Uncle Dick is a man of money; he is crusty and curt; the hero of the story—written in the autobiographical style—wants to marry a cousin; and the old boy won't let him. Said old boy dies of apoplexy after a fit of passion, and leaves nothing to the narrator but an old deed chest, in which are discovered securities of priceless value. "Your foresight is really wonderful." I replied. "Any one would think that you had been a writer of current fiction yourself."

Wanless glared at me so threateningly that I involutarily moved towards the poker. His eyes were filled with horror, hate and loathing.

selves From Fine When Arrested.

A brand new point has come up in England with reference to the connection between bleycles and morals. To judge from several recent occurrences in the London suburbs frequented by wheel-gentlemen and wheel-ladies of the "Cockney" type, it would seem that cycling is gradually undermining the character of the London youth. There is a very stringent regulation in the villages that surround the "Modern Babylon" that when bicyclers use the footpath they should invariably keep their bell ding-dongling to warn-pedestrians. The penalty for not having and not ringing a bell is arrest and a fine, the traditional custom being, however, simply to pull up the offender, get his name and his promise to appear at the local police court the next day.

As a matter of fact my name is Osborne, but it is one of the weaknesses of human nature, whenever a man is addressed by the wrong patronymic, to allow the mistake to pass. I replied as quietly as I could in the affirmative, at least as quietly as a man can when his host, with eyes "in a fine frenzy rolling," locks the door and puts the key carefully away in his pocket.

"Then of course you remember all the denouement—hateful word," Wanless said as he opened my innocent book and glanced at the first story. "We will have a little mental amusement, and you shall correct me if I am wrong. I see the first story is a ghost tale, called The White Mystery.' And here, looking casually through, I find are two characters. They are brothers—one, a brave military man; the other, a nervous, imaginative youth, who is scoffed at by the brother because he fears a ghost. Let me forecast the end of the story. Business Men Ask That Incom-Tax Affidavits Be Returned.

SPECK WILL NOT DO IT.

Says All the Returns in His Possession Must Be Sent to the Government at Washington.

Internal Revenue Collector Speck received a call Wednesday at his office in the Federal Building from two gentlemen who were fully prepared to tell him a few things about the income tax. Unfortunately he was not in at the time, and so did not hear what they had to say, but their kick was registered just the same with the Col-

The callers were Oscar L. Biebinger. Secretary of the Mallinckrodt Chemica Works, 3600 North Second street, and John Atwood, manager of the National Ammonia Co., 3600 North Broadway. The object of their visit was to inform the principal agent in the collection of the income tax that they wanted the returns made for their respective corporations given back to them. As Judge Speck was not in they did their talking to Deputy Collector Cleveland.

They told him that inasmuch as the income tax had been declared unconstitutional, the Government had not right to the information obtained by means of its provisions. Mr. Cleveland informed them that the instructions from Washington were that all the returns be forwarded to the Treasury Department forthwith, and that, therefore, he could not comply with their request.

The point was argued at some length, injunction proceedings being threatened, but function proceedings being threatened, but the department instructions were paramount and the desired returns were not obtained.

Messrs. Biebinger and Atwood left the Federal Building determined to appeal to the courts for a restraining order. After considerable investigation they concluded that the game would hardly be worth the candle. No small amount of time, money and work would be involved before the matter could be definitely settled, and so they decided to let the matter drop and trust to the Government's some day sending the returns back of its own accord.

Mr. Biebinger was seen Thursday morning at his office and explained his position in the matter.

"The Government," he said, "has no right to the information extracted from us through this law. It has now been declared unconstitutional, and it seems to me the justice of our position is manifest. Mr. Atwood and myself were really determined on going to law over the matter when we found we could not get the returns, but we found that the expense of such an action would fall upon the party bringing the suit, regardless of the result, and even were an injunction granted the Government might appeal and put us to a great annoyance, so we concluded not to do anything.

"The law was bad enough while it lasted, but now it is worse. The clerks who took the returns cannot now be prosecuted in case they divulge the returns under the law, as the penalties attached fall with the rest of it. It will be next to impossible to keep them from talking, and no man wants his private business affairs to become public property.

"These returns will now go on to Washing-tra and Congressmen and others will prob-private business arairs to become public property.

"These returns will now go on to Washington and Congressmen and others will probably have a chance to see them and harm might result. Not that we have anything in our return that we are particularly anxious to conceal, but it is a matter of principle. The Government had no right to the information in the first place, and now that it has been shown that it procured it without warrant of law, it should do what it can to rectify the mistake. The Administration would appear in a much better light out warrant of law, it should do what it can to rectify the mistake. The Administration would appear in a much better light before the country were this done."

Mr. Atwood talked in much the same strain. He could not concelve what the Government could want with a lot of returns, although he said employes could be prosecuted for divulging information relative to them, despite the unconstitutionality of the income tax law.

Mr. Atwood was Chief Clerk of the Internal Revenue office under Collector Barnum and he says there is a general statute covering the divulging of information obtained by all internal revenue clerks in the collection of taxes.

"The equity of our position is plain," he said, "but when we considered the trouble connected with going to law we decided that there were others perhaps more interested said, "but when we considered the trouble connected with going to law we decided that there were others perhaps more interested who had better take the step."

No one seems to understand why the Treasury Department should want to get the returns from all over the country unless to build a big bonfire for the benefit of those rejoicing over the law's downfail. The information which has been obtained from the wealthy classes is of serious importance to those giving it and in some cases the information which some rich but wily individuals did not give is just as important. According to those who know, there is a heap of truth mixed up with a deal of false swearing in the returns at the Federal Building, and almost every one would be glad to get them back.

Already pointers on some of the big incomes are beginning to leak out. It is human nature to be interested in vast sums of money when you know your neighbors have them, and it is also human nature to talk about these things.

money when you know your neighbors have them, and it is also human nature to talk about these things.

Rumor, with a strong probability behind it, says that Liggett & Meyers made the biggest return of any concern in the city. It was $1,300,000. That is a pretty healthy, able-bodied sum to pay taxes on. The rival tobacco house of Drummond swore to a net income of something like $900,000. The English Brewery Syndicate, about which there has been so much talk of bad business, was willing to pay the tax on nearly $1,000,000. The beer drivers who are boycotting the syndicate will have to work a long time pefore they knock this out.

The Anneuser-Busch Brewing Association only made a return of a little over $500,000. Adolphus Busch's personal account was something like $50,000, with rents excluded. These were the biggest returns made. They show that beer and tobacco are the king money-makers. By comparison the $90,000 income which the William Barr Dry Goods Co., big concern that it is, turned in, fades into insignificance.

And, by the way, it may be said that Col. Edward Butler, the unfortunate politician, declared that his income was not big enough to tax.

The City's Fuel Contract.

The City's Fuel Contract.

Devoy & Feuerborn take exception to the intimation that the largest part of the fuel bill of the Fire Department went to that firm by virtue of friendship existing between ex-Chief Lindsay and Edward Devoy. As a matter of fact, the Chief of the Fire Department has nothing to do with the buying of fuel and has no influence in letting the contracts. That is done through the Supply Commissioner's office, and the contract is let to the lowest bidder after the usual advertisements for bids. Ed Devoy feels further a personal injury was done him in attributing his friendship for ex-Chief Lindsay to mercenary motives, as the friendship between them existed long before Mr. Lindsay was appointed Chief.

by Joseph W. Bafet, J. B. Brewer and Geo.
S. Morrison of Chicago. Mr. Balet placed the estimated cost of his bridge at $28,00,000.
Mr. Morrison estimated it at $25,000,000; but the Morrison estimate only includes the cost from anchorage to anchorage, whereas the Balet estimate includes the extensive shore approaches on both sides of the river.

Mr. Brewer's plan is much more elaborate than either of the others, but he gave no estimate of the cost. It seemed to deeply impress the Commissioners, however. It contemplates three separate roadways, one above the other, and supported by separate cables swung from different altithdes of the two towers. It will certainly be an imposing structure if built, putting the Brooklyn bridge entirely in the shade. All plans must be filed with the Secretary of War by June 7.

It has been charged in the public press and elsewhere that members of the General Assembly of this State, now in session here, have been corrupted. The charges in many instances have been of the most definite and specific character. Now, gentlemen, if any member of the General Assembly has directly or indirectly received money or other valuable things in consideration of his vote or official action he is guilty of a crime, as or official action he is guilty or a crime, as is also the person who corrupted him. On the other hand, if these charges are not true, then the parties who have made them are guilty of criminal libel and should be prosecuted. No Government can enjoy the confidence and respect of the people when such direct charges so generally made go unnoticed.

such direct charges so generally made go unnoticed.

"It is your duty, gentlemen, as honest jurors, unswerved by any motive, except to honestly prosecute law-breakers, to thoroughly investigate these charges. If found to be true, then you should indict those members who have been corrupted and the persons who corrupted them. If, on the other hand, you should find that such charges are not true, but have sprung from the malice of those who made them, then the authors of such charges should be indicted for libel. Gentlemen, I know you will fully and fearlessly do your duty."

This, in all probability, will lead to a full and thorough investigation of the present Legislature by a body legally authorized to act. The court is in session now, and the Grand-jury can act immediately. It will not be a bogus pass investigating committee.

WHEN WAS THE WAR OVER?

A Decision Made Necessary by Strange Pension Case.

WASHINGTON, May 23.-A decision of considerable importance has been made by Assistant Secretary Reynolds of the Interior Department in the case of John Barleyoung, late of Company E, Thirteenth Barleyoung, late of Company E, Thirteenth United States Infantry. Barleyoung served from April 19, 1866, to April 19, 1869, and claimed a pension under the pension law, on the ground that the war did not end until the issuance of President Johnson's proclamation on August 20, 1866, declaring it at an end. The Assistant Secretary holds that the actual termination of hostilities was in July, 1865, and adds: "It is not believed that Congress intended to pension those whose rendition of service, military or naval, had no connection with beligerent operations of the war, was not upon the theater of the conflict, and had nothing to do with the objects and purposes of the war."

do with the objects and purposes of the war."

The folowing rulings are therefore made: The technical legal termination of the war of the rebellion was August 20, 1886; under Section 2 of the act of June 27, 1890, service must have been rendered both during and in some necessary connection with the war of the rebellion as a part of its belligerent operations; service rendered after July, 1865, will be presumed to have not been in said war; service rendered after April 2, 1866, must be shown to have been rendered in some connection with the war as existing in the State of Tenass; service rendered within the State of Tenasse after June 13, 1865, will likewise be presumed not to have been in said war, unless shown to have had some necessary connection with the war elsewhere.

Assistant Secretary Reynolds also holds that when claims are filed under two different laws for the same disability, allowance under the general law is sufficient notice of rejection under the other.

WILDE LOOKED HAGGARD.

Lord Douglass and Rev. Headlam With Him in Court.

LONDON, May 23.-The Old Bailey Court was again crowded to-day when the trial of Oscar Wilde was resumed. Wilde en-tered the court room looking haggard, and stood for some time at the foot of the Jury box, conversing with Rev. Steward Headlam, one of his bondsmen. They were joined by Lord Douglass of Hawick, whose eye is still discolored as a result of his encounter with his father in Piccadilly, for which they were both bound over yesterday in $100 to keep the peace. The Marquis of Queensberry was also in court, looking jaunty and confident. He watched Wilde closely, and paid great attention to the evidence. Wilde, it was noticed, carefully avoided the gaze of the Marquis. Wilde, Lord Douglass of Hawick and Rev. Stewart Headlam remained in earnest conversation until the Judge took his seat. They listened attentively to all the testimony furnished, evidently weighing every word uttered as studiously as counsel on both sides. The earnest conversation of the trio was an incident which attracted much attention, and was considerably commented upon.

When the case was recepted the evidence. jury box, conversing with Rev. Steward upon.

When the case was reopened, the evidence furnished at the previous trial was repeated in detail, no new points of any importance being made.

SILVER OR DEFEAT. Chairman Carter Talks Plainly to

Eastern Republicans. NEW YORK, May 23 .- Senator Thomas H. Carter of Montana, Chairman of the Repub

Carter of Montana, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, has been talking plainly to his party friends here. He tells them that the party must indorse free silver coinage or lose the electoral votes of the Western States. He says:

"The issue presented by the financial question is the only one upon which the Republican party is to meet with any difficulty. If this financial question were eliminated Republican success would be an absolute certainty in 1896. In the States west of the Mississippi over 60 electoral votes which are naturally Republican will be doubtful until the National Convention meets and adopts its platform; and if that platform is not satisfactory on the question of bimetallism, the doubt will be resolved against the party.

lism, the doubt will be resolved against the party.

"With the Western votes subtracted from the Republican column, where they properly belong, the party cannot hope for a majority in the Electoral College for its candidates. It is not improbable that the vote would be cast for a third party candidate, and as a consequence the election would be thrown into the House of Representatives. In that body the vote for President would be cast by States, and it does not require a close analysis to reach the inevitable conclusions that the States in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of sliver outnumber the States favorable to a gold standard. It is useless to attempt to evade or conceal the fact that the sentiment of the country at large in favor of the rehabilitation of sliver has become irrepressible."

The accident was such a little thing. When the woman came into the court room in custody of a deputy sheriff, to answer for the crime that may bring her to the gallows, she encountered the gaze of a crowd that watched her every movement and expression for a trace of shrinking or of re-

But others did not move on and where those are who were guided by such clocks is not a matter of record.

as though with a knife, the sight being destroyed.

The saloon is run in conjunction with Jennie Snyder's house of ill fame, an establishment which has seventeen rooms and connecting doors with the saloon, which thrives on the beer trade of the unfortunate women and their visitors.

This delectable resort is run by a man who is entitled to the prefix Hon., in that Joe Daneri is a member in good standing of the Missouri Legislature.

Stevens' sister, Millie Pair, is an inmate of Jennie Snyder's house, and he came to the city Wednesday for the purpose of trying to induce her to go back home with him, and abandon a life of shame. Before he could succeed in this laudable design he was brutally attacked and disfigured for life. He is now at the City Hospital.

At the Third District Station it was learned that Jim Daneri, a brother of the Hon. Joe, was the man who assaulted Stevens. He has not been arrested. The police said he could not be found. Wednesday night he was around boasting of his prowess h knocking out Stevens. He was not making any attempt to escape, to conceal himself or to deny his guilt at that time, still he was unmolested. The Hon. Joe Daneri is said to have a very strong political puil.

THROUGH A PARLOR WINDOW. Burglars Enter Dr. Garcia's Residence and Make a Haul.

Burglars entered the residence of Dr. Felix Garcia, 3205 South Grand avenue Wednesday night and stole the watches of Dr. Felix Garcia and his brother, Manuel. The clothes were searched and about $15 in change, besides the watches taken.

German Lutheran Entertainment. The second grand entertainment of the "General Society of German Evangelical Lutheran Young Men" at Entertainment Hail Wednesday night was well attended and of a highly enjoyable character. The programme consisted of thirteen numbers, literary and musical, rendered by members of the society and their friends. A plano solo, "Rhapsodie Hungroise No. 2" by Miss Lydia Schultz, the accomplished 15-year-old daughter of Mr. Wm. C. Schultz, was notable. Other special numbers were a song by Mrs. C. C. anywhere. The resemblance was remarkable.

There were three weary hours of waiting for the woman before her case was called. She passed them in the prisoners' cage as much an object of contemning curiosity to her companions there as she had been to the occupants of the court room. Ignoring them, she flung herself upon the bench into a corner, as far back into the dark recess as she could go. Then she burst into tears.

"He was not only my best friend; he was a part of me," she sobbed.

Those who had seen her flaunting through the court room would not have recognized her. The tears streaming down her face left great ditches where they had washed away the paint and powder. Her hair, made yellow by art, was dishevelled and streamed about her face. She was in a paraysm only reconciled to the demeanor she had just before betrayed by the history of all women of her class, whose intense artificiality explains all their acts.

Dr. Frank began by detailing the facts of his meeting with the dead Senator at the saloon of the latter, Eleventh and Clark avenue, at 11 o'clock Sunday night, May 12. Maude Lewis came in while witness and Dr. T. W. O'Reilly were talking with Morrissey. The four left for Maude Lewis' house later at her request. When they arrived Morrissey at first refused to leave the carriage, but the woman urged him. Neither of them were intoxicated, but had been drinking.

of them were intoxicated, but had been drinking.

When the party entered the house they were quiet. They conversed some time together, and witness had a faint recollection of a dispute between the woman and Morrissey over some cigars. Finally, at the woman's solicitation, Morrissey retired with her, and witness went to another part of the house. Shortly after he heard the shot fired and rushed down stairs.

"The defendant," continued the witness, "was in the middle of the second room, struggling with the porter and crying out: "Give it to me, I've killed Pete, and now I want to kill myself." The pistol was in the possession of the porter. Morrissey's body lay across one end of the bed in the front room. There were no evidences of a struggle."

Dr. Frank described the two wounds. One cross-examination Dr. Frank state on cross-examination Dr. Frank stated he had been an intimate and particular friend of Peter R. Morrissey the past five years, but denied that he had been an associate of the defendant. He further stated that it was about 12:30 o'clock Monday morning that Maude Lewis had come to the saloon. She had been there half an hour before witness saw her. She had come out from the wine room to the bar and had asked Morrissey to drink with her. There had been no trouble between the two in the saloon that witness noticed. Morrissey, however, had caused the saloon to be closed in order to avoid drinking with the Lewis. Witness could not state whether either Morrissey or the defendant drank anything in the saloon. It was 2 o'clock when the party reached the house, and it was half an hour before anyone retired. A couple of bottles of beer were opened. The witness insisted that none of the party were intoxicated at any time that morning.

Witness stated that the body of Morrissey was covered up, and he had evidently been murdered while asleep.

At this point sobs shook, the form of the defendant and tears flowed down her cheeks. "When I was making the examination." continued Dr. Frank, "two of the cries uttered by the woman were: You would beat me!" and 'Oh, I've killed my Pete."

Witness was positive that none of the furniture in the room was disarranged and that there were no evidences of a struggle. Here the inquiry was interrupted by Judge Murphy, who announced that the matter would have to be laid over as he had a jury case to try. The hearing was adjourned until June 4, at 1 o'clocks.

PINE STREET RAILWAY.

Merchants' Exchange Protests Vigorously Against Third Street Loop. The latest protest against granting the franchise asked for by the Missouri Traction Company for the occupancy of Pine street comes from the Merchants' Exchange and is especially directed against the Third street loop. It is addressed to the Council Committee on Railroads, which meets Friday afternoon, and runs as follows: The undersigned, the Legislative Committee of the Merchants' Exchange, represent-ing the Board of Directors thereof, would ing the Board of Directors thereof, would respectfully but earnestly protest against the granting of a franchise by the Municipal Assembly for a street railway, a portion of which would run from Fourth and Pine street east on Pine to Third, north on Third to Locust, west on Locust to Fourth and south on Fourth to Pine.

"This committee is of the opinion that there is no necessity for a street railroad on Pine street, and are positive in their convictions that the loop proposed from Fourth street east to Third and back to Fourth will be entirely unnecessary and very objectionable.

street east to Third and back to Fourth will be entirely unnecessary and very objectionable.

"Pine, Third and Locust streets are all narrow, and a street car line over these narrow streets would most seriously interfere with the traffic by teams. Even were this road built westward on Pine it could easily stop at Fourth without inconvenience, as people desiring to use same within the district of the loop suggested would have a very short distance to waik to the Fourth and Pine terminus.

"Your petitioners represent the Merchants' Exchange, whose property is situated on Third and Pine, and they believe that the laying of a railroad track down this narrow street would be a serious detriment to the property; that it is uncalled for; not demanded by any necessity, and that the granting of this franchise would be unwise in every respect. They are also of the opinion that the road as proposed out Pine street would be objectionable to the residents of said street, and join with them in protesting against granting any part of this franchise." The Government is actively preparing to resist England's designs in annexing Amatongaland, which would have the effect of cutting off the Transvaal republic from obtaining access to the sea. AMERICA'S OPPORTUNITY.

China's Conqueror Hates as Well as Fears the European League.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.
TOKIO, May 10, via Victoria, B. C., May 22. -When China asked through the American Ministers at Peking and Tokio that the exchange of ratifications of the peace treaty be delayed, Japan emphatically refused to permit any procrastination, and called out For two days it was supposed, even by those who watched the events from the inside, that the government was straining every nerve to resist the pressure of the European League. The statement that an answer would be given to the powers by May 7, was interpreted as meaning that no answer was contemplated before that date. Several Ministers of State have remained in Tokio all the while, and even they had no anticipation that their colleagues at Tokio would break silence as long as they were not driven to declare themselves. But on the morning of the 4th news came that an offer had been made to renounce Man-an offer had been made churis.

The astonishment created by this announcement was beyond expression. The purport of the proposal was telegraphed on May 4. Its specific terms were that after the dignity of Japan had been satisfied by the exchange of ratifications she would give up her claims upon the bulk of the Shinking Province.

exchange or ratifications she would give up her claims upon the bulk of the Shinking Province.

On May 6, it was announced that Japan had abandoned the whole of the conquered region on the continent, including the fost-resses which she regarded as her most gior-lous prize.

Of all the strange features of this inexplicable transaction, the strangest is that the high officials from whom the sturdiest resistence to timid counsel should have been expected, were as ready as the Prime Minister himself to yield to the European demands. Amagata, Kabayama, Saigo, all who control the military and naval administration, united in the hasty compliance. Among the Generals in the field only Nosu and Yamaji urged defiance.

It is said, and thoroughly believed, that of all the cabinet Viscount Mutsu alone, though unable to leave his bed, and almost speechless, from pain and exhaustion, protested from beginning to end against the needless precipitancy of his associates. If this proves to be true, people will in time exalt him more highly than ever, but it is needless precipitancy of his associates. If this proves to be true, people will in time exalt him more highly than ever, but it is not supposed that he can escape the gen-eral downfall of the ministry. That the Emperor's advisers will soon per-ceive the impossibility of confronting the wrath of the nation, is considered too ob-vious to admit of discussion. Upon an imvious to admit of discussion. Upon an important point no spirit of prophecy is required to read the future. The international relations of the past are irretrievably shattered, and the attitude of Japan towards many of the great powers is changed for the next half century, if not forever. Russia must be hated and feared. France will lose every vestige of her hold upon Japanese regard. But the feeling towards these two nations will be as nothing compared with the implacable animosity of which Germany nations will be as nothing compared with the implacable animosity of which Germany will be the object.

Japan needs a stanch friend as she never yet needed one. Is America prepared to give assurance of her faith in the sincerity of Japan's intentions and in her title to represent modern civilization and progress in the far East? If this empire is forced to stand entirely alone without moral support from any enlightened quarter, her labor for the past ten months may be largely thrown away. Force may be wrested from her influence and allowed to degenerate and decay un'a absorption by Russia becomes inevitable.

The policy of neutrality to which the the policy of neutrality to which the United States Government is pledged need not be deserted in order to secure all the materian auvantages hitherto enjoyed by certain great European nations. If such advantages are alone to be thought of, it should require but little persuasion to induce Japan to find a new field for her immense disbursements of the coming quarter of a century. But beyond those considerations, the vast commercial opportunities which may be opened in Asia through cooperation with Japan ought not to be left out of calculations.

For three of the precious fluid. For three centuries or more, all sorts and conditions of men, from the king to the tramp, have pilgrimized hither in search of new life or relief from pain. But we cannot in these competitive days afford the time and money to travel so far afield, so it is brought to your doors bottled in its natural and original form at the Spring, or in powder evaporated on the spot, and so well known as the Carlsbad Sprudel Water, and Carlsbad Sprudel Salt. WILL HAVE DISCIPLINE, is a large proportion of old men in the Department. Shall you make many removals from among the older members?"

There are some old men in the Department that are the best firmen in it, and they are men that I would place more dependence on than a great many of the young men. If a man is active and strong, I see no reason why he should be displaced by a younger man who has not given evidence of his capability and willingness to give failfulful service."

"Do you expect to carry out your ideas without interference of a political character. It is not necessary for a man to be a hoodlum to be a good fireman."

Thus spoke Chief Swingley, quietly, modestly and determinedly, sitting before his neatly-kept deek at department headquarters, when invited to outline his policy for Chief Swingley has already made several.

business for the same and having as much busing separately, and having as much business of my own as I cared to attend to and be responsible for, I, myself, suggested it Mr. W. H. Lee, President of the Merchants National Bank, that it might be a good thin, to consolidate the two banks, and that he bundle President of the consolidation. He made President of the consolidation.

McNICHOL'S HELP. HE IS ALWAYS READY.

Rootbeer

He Hailed From Texas. From the Washington Post.

From the Washington Post.

There was a tall, gaunt Texan who came on to Washington during Cleveland's first administration. He had a pile of letters and recommendations and indorsements about the size of a bundle of fodder. He was in high spirits and perfectly confident that he would get his appointment at once. He took in the town with some of the choice spirits of the Texas colony, and regaled them with bright pictures of what he was going to do just as soon as he was confirmed. It turned out, however, that he hadn't been in Texas for ten years. Another officeseeker caught on to this fact, and used it for all it was worth. The Texan went up to see the Secretary, and had a painful interview with him, and wound up by saying: "It's true, Mr. Secretary, I do business in New York, but I live in Texas, at least I don't think I'm living unless I'm there. Besides, if a man can't hall from Texas, where in the h—ican he hall from?"

be of good moral character. It is not necessary for a man to be a hoodlum to be a good fireman."
